If a law enforcement officer conducts a custodial interrogation at a place of detention without electronically recording the interrogation, the officer must prepare a written report explaining the reason why he or she did not record the interrogation. If a law enforcement officer conducts a custodial interrogation at a place other than a place of detention they shall, as soon as possible, prepare a written report explaining the circumstances of the interrogation at the place of interrogation and summarize the custodial interrogation process and the individual’s statements.

Exceptions to the recording requirement are:

- an unforeseen equipment malfunction prevents recording the custodial interrogation in its entirety;
- a suspect refuses to participate in a custodial interrogation if his or her statements are to be electronically recorded;
- an equipment operator error prevents recording the custodial interrogation in its entirety;
- the statement is made spontaneously and not in response to a custodial interrogation;

- the custodial interrogation occurs when the law enforcement officer participating in the interrogation does not have any knowledge of facts and circumstances that would lead an officer to reasonably believe that the individual being interrogated may have committed an enumerated offense;
- the law enforcement officer conducting the custodial interrogation reasonably believes that making an electronic recording would jeopardize the safety of the officer, the individual being interrogated, or others; or
- the custodial interrogation is conducted outside of this state.

Unless a court finds that one or more of the above-listed extenuating circumstances exist, the court must consider the failure to record the interrogation in determining the admissibility of the statement and if, the statement is deemed admissible the court must, on request, give the jury an admonition stating that the statement was not recorded as required by law.

If a law enforcement agency has adopted policies mandating adherence to this law, the agency is not civilly liable for damages arising from the failure to record.
